GIMP (GNU Image Manipulation Program) _GIMP_ (www.gimp.org) is an open source image manipulation tool, similar to Photoshop. It's free for personal use, but you'll need to register to use it professionally. The key difference between the two tools is that you can do advanced work with GIMP, but you can't edit Photoshop files. GIMP also lacks the Photoshop tools. That means you can only work with raster files. However, GIMP provides many free and paid plug-ins that give you access to many advanced Photoshop tools, like spot healing and layer masks. Check out Figure 7-6 for a comparison of GIMP versus Photoshop. Figure 7-6: GIMP and Photoshop are very similar in terms of editing tools, but GIMP lacks the Photoshop Actions and plug-ins. Image courtesy of McCloud Digital Pictures, www.mccloud.com GIMP is often compared to Photoshop because of the number of plug-ins available, and it boasts some really cool features for beginners who want to achieve professional results. You can purchase GIMP Elements, a bundle of the GIMP software and numerous add-ons available at www.gimp.org/products. Unfortunately, G

I've been a fan of the Small Business Big SEO campaign for a while now, as it seems a no-brainer for any business that wants to move beyond the oft-repeated line 'the customer is king'. B2B search is on the rise – and is at least as competitive as B2C – but SEO for small B2B businesses is a lot more complex than it is for their B2C cousins. Case in point: The Small Business Big SEO campaign partners with businesses such as this in the US to provide them with an SEO strategy that's specifically designed to turn them into industry thought leaders, with the help of specialist SEO partners, many of which are themselves small businesses. There are a couple of differences to this as the campaign is pitched at small businesses: The word 'small' is very relative when you consider the volume of email traffic from B2B networks The content of the newsletters is of course significantly more targeted than the 'let's-get-to-know-you-better' nature of the niche B2C publications and events you can expect from a Small Business Big SEO campaign The main difference I think is that with B2C, SEO often involves a lot more vanity metrics and content marketing (which can of course work well for B2B). With B2B though, it's about showing more substance, demonstrating real expertise (a real-word thinking move, as I'm sure you'll agree). In terms of the referral sources: you have more of them, which is more reflective of the fact that a B2B subscriber base is likely to have a more robust job title than a school teacher, or a computer consultant. So what do you think? Would you subscribe to a B2B version of the campaign?// SPDX-License-Identifier: GPL-2.0 /* * helpers.c: misc helpers for parport_pc-specific code * This file is part of WinSparkLE. * * Copyright (c) 2016, Stephan Mueller */ #include #include #include #include "parport_pc.h" static unsigned int is_parport_zero
